Time To Think About Local Civic Affairs

Ratepayers' Meeting

With the annual Ratepayers' Meeting in the office and the Municipal Election just around the corner, as it were, it is not too soon for the citizens of Redcliff to begin thinking along local civic lines.

The Ratepayers' Meeting will be held on Friday, Jan. 26th, when it behooves every ratepayer who is interested in his town's affairs to be present to hear the Mayor, the Councillors and the School Board give accounts of their stewardship during the past year.

If you have been satisfied with your municipal government during 1939, the least you can do is to come out and show your appreciation of the work done on your behalf. If you were not satisfied it is up to you to attend the meeting and say why you were not satisfied. Your opinion may help the incoming Council and School Board to carry on your business more in accordance with your wishes.

After all, it is your business these people are doing and your money they are spending.

No doubt many ratepayers will want to know what has been done in regard to the electricity situation since the by-law was passed. Others will want to know what is being done to improve the Town's water system.

Whatever information is desired as regard to town affairs may be had at the Ratepayers' meeting. So be sure to be there and get your information first hand.

Local Family Bereaved Sad Circumstances

Bernard Theodore Baudry aged eight months

The sympathy of this whole community goes out at this time to Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Baudry (nee June Anshel) and to Mr. and Mrs. T. Anshel in their bereavement.

The eight months old son of the former are grandson of the latter couple passed away at the Medicine Hat General Hospital on Monday Jan. 15th. The little fellow succumbed to an attack of cerebral meningitis after a sharp illness.

The case is particularly sad because of the fact that the child's mother is at present a patient in the Keith Sanatorium and was not able to be with her little son at the end.

The funeral service was held from St. Ambrose Anglican Church on Tuesday with Rev. H. S. Hammet officiating. Interment was made in Redcliff Cemetery.

Nazi Racial Theory

Education To Explain Fallacies That Masquerade As Science

From his office in Columbia University, Professor Franz Boas, 61, "father of anthropology," is leading a war of scientists against Hitlerite aggression and waging it with scientific established facts as weapons.

Nazi racial theory, says Professor Boas, who is himself a German, "is the expression of a pseudo-science defended by fanatics who, whatever else they may be or know, do not understand the simplest facts of anthropological science."

Their very use of the term "Aryan" is wrong, he points out. Aryan, in its actual sense as used by scientists, has always meant "a family of languages," not a race.

Professor Boas' extensive anthropological work, which lends weight to his criticism of the Nazis, has many links with Canada. He studied the central Eskimo in Baffin Land in 1883, wrote reports on the Dominion for the British Association for the Advancement of Science and made repeated trips to Vancouver Island to study the Kwakiwilt Indians.

Last year he obtained permission from Canadian authorities to have a Kwakiwilt Indian go to New York to work with him.

From years-long researches made by himself and other scientists, Prof. Boas concludes that "humanity does not inherit fixed mental and physical characteristics."

If people integrate, their children, he said, and brought up in a new environment, will change physically. Their height and even the shape of their heads, Prof. Boas says, will become more like those of the people among whom they live. Intelligence depends on people of a given race has been shown to change with changed living conditions.

Professor Boas has rallied hundreds of scientists and educators to the American committee for democracy and intellectual freedom which under his leadership is sponsoring a year of education to expose Nazi fallacies masquerading as science.

Solid Water

Scientists Say It Is Hard As Steel And Quite Transparent

A method of producing "solid water" with a top pistol was demonstrated before the Advancement of Science.

The solid water is not ice, Dr. B. J. Lay of St. Louis University declared, but a form which does not exist in nature. It has none of the crystalline structure or other features of frozen water. It retains all the crystal pure transparent qualities of water, yet is about as hard as steel.

Mr. Lay used an arrangement of two steel plungers, a child's toy pistol, and a melting device to make the glass, or vitrified, water. The steel plungers are dipped in liquid which has a temperature of 100 degrees below zero. One is held fast while the other is inserted in the top pistol and shot against the first water from the medicine dropper as it flows between.

The result is a small thin piece of hard water. It is also possible to vitrify solutions of nit-freezes, glycerine, sugar, gelatin and other substances, thus giving scientists new clues to the arrangements of molecules in non-living and living substances.

Many plants and animals can be vitrified with liquid air and brought back from a state of suspended animation to function again, Dr. Lay declared.

Radio Agreement

New Clear Channels For Canadian Radio Stations

At least six months will be needed to make effective the new North American regional agreement which gives new clear channels to Canadian radio stations, officials of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation said.

The agreement, made at Havana two years ago, was ratified by Mexico, the last country to approve it. Under its terms Canada, United States, Cuba, Mexico, Haiti and the Dominican Republic agree to share 100 broadcast bands.

CBC officials said new wave lengths will be allocated to nearly all stations on this continent. In the United States about hundreds of stations will be affected.

A definite deadline will be set for the swing-over so that all stations will change to the new wave lengths at the same time. Necessary technical adjustments in transmitters and antenna systems will have to be made during the six months interval.

Turtles 12 feet long once lived in Kansas.

Many Centuries Ago

Have Struggled For Space In Canada After Ice Age

A grim battle for living space was waged between an invading Mongoloid people from Asia and the early settlers of North America's barren lands, according to Dr. Diamond Jenness, chief of the anthropology division of the National Museum of Canada.

Dr. Jenness told the Anthropological Association at Chicago that man first came to America from Asia some 20,000 years ago, after the ice age. He followed the caribou into northeastern Asia and crossed the Bering Strait "highway," a channel with two islands forming convenient "steps."

The early arrivals settled in what now is Alaska and Northwestern Canada, and gradually became a domesticated people. Just before the Christian era, the Albataskians came over from Asia, said Dr. Jenness. A virile Aggressive people, they found peaceful Eskimoes and Algonquians Indians.

The land was not rich enough to give all a living, so the first North American struggle for "subsistence" began. Soon the Eskimoes were pushed farther away and the Algonquians spread south. Some Eskimo groups drifted to the eastern Arctic while some Algonquians are believed to have gone to far west as Labrador.

Dr. Jenness said the course of the Albataskian "aggression" has been traced by archaeological findings.

Save For Victory

Finance Is The Strong Arm Of Defense In Winning The War

"Save Your Way to Victory" by the way the inscription reads on the large blue and white posters which are appearing on the boardwalks all over London and on the four panels at the base of the Nelson Monument in Trafalgar Square, which seem now to be a sort of starting point for national announcements in any form under his leadership.

"Finance," says the Chancellor, "is the fourth arm of defense, no less important than the other three, and it is our money, then, the prop that sustains the whole of the war effort will collapse."

And so the British people are urged to take their shillings out of the money boxes for the good of the country and to save to provide more. The response, willing and eager, is beyond all estimate. It will be enormous. Finance will not fail and the prop will not collapse.

Here in Canada we will too shortly be called upon to subscribe to a Victory Loan campaign, and the people of Canada will give as willingly as those of Britain. The war must be won, and our money is required to be forthcoming without complaint.

But to Victory—it is a striking slogan and might well be adopted here, as across the seas.—St. Catharines Standard.

The Japanese Army

Recent Fight With Russia Might Prove It Is Inferior

The Finns have proved pretty conclusively that the vaunted Red Russian army is not much good. But how good is the Japanese army?

The Japanese and the Russians got into a fight, some months ago, at the Mongolian border. There was no really a war, but there was a battle or series of battles. Several divisions were engaged on each side, with plenty of artillery, tanks and planes. The fighting went on for days. The casualties were heavy. If a test of strength had been desired, there could have been nothing better. And what happened?

The Japanese, though closer to their bases than the Russians, were fought to a standstill. Neither side was able to make effective progress. The armistice appeared to be about equal.

But if the Russians, by European standards, are inferior, and yet, on a basis of the Mongolian test, are about as good as the Japanese, does it not seem probable that the Japanese, too, are inferior? Japan has never fought a first-rate power. Its victories have been over weaker Chinese and Russians. Perhaps Finland, in picking the Russian battle, has picked another bubble, too—the Japanese bubble.—Chicago Daily News.

The Family Farm

Is The Bulwark Of Our National Character

"Canada in common with Britain, France, and other parts of the Empire, is the foundation upon which our national character is being safeguarded by our form of Government. They realize that the right to property is the foundation upon which our family life rests. They realize that the family as exemplified by the King and Queen during their recent visit to Canada is the cornerstone of our civilization. They know, as well as we all do, that the privacy owned and controlled farm is the safeguard of the modern home. The family farm is the bulwark of our national character. For it is we stand. It is the duty of Canada to bring our farms and those business organizations essential to their continued existence through the war, stoutly established."—Hon. J. C. Gardiner, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, in an address to the United Grain Growers at Winnipeg.

Population Figures

Predict Growth Of Canada To Over Fifteen Millions In Next Thirty Years

A population of 15,400,000 is in prospect for Canada by 1971, predicts the latest census of the country, without too much interference. Ever since the turn of the century the population has risen by a progressively slower rate. In the first decade of the century the increase was about 30 per cent. In this decade, it is a bit more than 31 per cent. And the underlying trend is likely to be downward for some time, Prof. W. H. Murd, of McMaster University, says.

Prof. Murd's population projection, appearing in the current issue of the Canadian Journal of Economics and Political Science, also indicates the extent of the steady shift in age distribution. Where children under 20 were 41.64 per cent. of the population in 1931, they will be only 34 per cent. in 1971, and persons over 65 will be 23.16 per cent. compared to 16.64 per cent. in 1931.

Capable Of Great Work

Older People Have Contributed Much To The Empire

Katharine Cornall, the first lady of the theatre to many of its devotees, scoffs at the frequent aspersion that maturity is on the down grade in a world which often prizes extreme youth in the saddle. "We hear that youth is preferred," she told a Chicago interviewer, "because of a supposed greater buoyancy and vitality. We hear that the spirit goes into decline with the passing of the years. It is my opinion that 'spirit' does not go into a decline. There simply wasn't enough spirit there to start with. The lack of spirit may become more obvious as one grows older, but it doesn't wither merely because of age."

"From the mere fact that a person is in the youth stage of life, it does not follow that the person is keener and more radiant and vital than his elders."

Maybe, she suggested, everybody is just a little too age conscious, too easily persuaded to employ facile dividing devices to appraise and classify a man and his ambitions. "Too much emphasis," she continued, "cannot be placed today upon the fact that no small part of the great work done in all ages has been accomplished by elders, in many instances by persons more than 80 years old."

Britain's Worst Storm

Started On November 26th, 1933 And Lasted Three Days

November 26 was the anniversary of the greatest storm ever recorded in Great Britain says News of the World. A strong wind which set on about the middle of November, 1933, reached its height on the night of Nov. 26, when hundreds of houses were blown down, tens of thousands of trees uprooted, and many people killed.

At sea the effects were even more terrible for over 300 ships were wrecked around our coast, with a loss of more than 6,000 lives. On that night of horrors also, the first Eddystone Lighthouse with its builder, Henry Winstanley in it, was utterly destroyed.

Henry V. was the first British monarch to pay a state visit to Paris; this occurred in 1420.

Raising Status Of Indians

Expected Indians And Eskimos Will Be Gradually Paid With White Race

Dr. Diamond Jenness of the National Museum of Canada predicted Indians and Eskimos of the Dominion eventually will be absorbed into the white race.

Chief of the museum's division of anthropology and retiring president of the section on anthropology of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Dr. Jenness told the association's annual meeting, "Canadian governments steadfastly have held to the belief that the aboriginal population of the Dominion should and would gradually fuse with the white."

"Consequently they have directed their efforts toward raising the status of the Indians and establishing them on a secure economic basis," he added. "Most of the tribes are now increasing in numbers and adapting themselves to changing conditions."

The government does not attempt to isolate the Eskimo tribes of the far north and they "are well qualified to take care of themselves." Their women have proved excellent wives for the white pioneers who settled in the "arctic regions."

Of the Indians the Ingotia tribes have been particularly successful, since they are essentially an agricultural people.

On the Canadian plains, the Blackfoot tribes are more prosperous than any of the Indians, and are being guided by far sighted chiefs during the difficult transition period, from the hunt to agriculture. The Pacific coast Indians, such as the Salish and the Kwakiwilt, and was native leaders and depend on the white man for guidance.

Silk Produced In England

May Be Used For Fur-Trade Cloth And Awel Britain's War Effort

The output of 3,500,000 silkworms which spin their silk in the stately rows of mulberry trees at Lullingstone castle is being investigated by officials of the Supply Ministry and Air Ministry who are responsible for the production of parachute cloth.

The only place in Britain where silk is produced, Lullingstone Castle, in Kent, is the estate of the Earl Dyke family, but Sir Oliver, the 8th baronet, and his lady live in a small house on the estate. The castle was "go into residence" in the castle itself for 30 days in each season. "The girls spin their silk."

King James I. and King George I. both unsuccessfully tried to create a home-produced silk industry, but success has eluded them. It was Dyke's efforts, which started in 1832 and supplied the raw silk for the Coronation robes of the Princesses and the Royal Duchesses.

The castle has 200,000 mulberry trees and bushes to provide food for my family, and covers 150 acres," Lady Mary Dyke said.

"Annual production has now reached about 1,500 pounds of silk, enough for about 200 parachutes. The Ministry of Supply requires very exacting tests—for example, the silk must be able to stand a strain of 40 pounds to the square inch—but I have now heard that our British silk meets every technical requirement, and I am naturally proud that the Lullingstone silkworms may help in Britain's war effort."

Keeps Open House

King George Solves Problem For Members Of Royal Family

The King has solved war-time housing problems by making open house at Buckingham Palace to his mother, his sister, his brothers and sisters-in-law when they are in London, says the Daily Sketch. The Duke and Duchess of Gloucester have given up York House, St. James's Palace, as a residence. The Duke and Duchess of Kent have given up their town house—3 Beigra-square—for Red Cross work. Queen Mary has moved Marlborough House for the duration. This has affected the normal arrangements of the Princess Royal and Lord Harrowood. When they were in town, and did not wish to open their Green street house, they stayed at Marlborough House. A series of rooms on the second floor of the east wing of Buckingham Palace, which were the suites of the King and his brothers in the bachelor days, have been allocated to use by any of these guests. When these rooms are not available the Beigra suite, on the ground floor near the Queen's private apartments, is brought into use.

Paris is reopening post offices closed at the war's start.

Feeding For Egg Production

Results Of Experiments Carried On At Dominion Experimental Station

The poultryman is very much concerned with effective and economical methods of feeding his laying flock. The Dominion Experimental Station at Morden has been carrying on feeding trials for a number of years. These have compared barley with corn, low grade wheat with standard milling wheat, and fish meal with meat meal. These feeding trials cover a six-month or winter period of each year—November to the end of April, states J. H. Bailey, Head Poultryman, Dominion Experimental Station, Morden, Man.

The comparison of barley and home-grown corn embraced nine years. In each case the cereal concerned constituted 20 per cent of the total ration. Egg production averaged 80.12 for barley and 81.81 for corn fed birds. Total weight of feed consumed in the continued period was similar, as was also the average egg weight. Body weight increased more during tests of barley feeding than of corn. The cost of feeding barley was lower. A calculation of feed costs and egg values shows a net return of 8 1/2 cents per bird higher for the barley pens in a six-month period.

The test of shivered wheat versus high grade wheat extended for three years. Wheat made up 40 per cent of the mash and 50 per cent of the whole grain rations. Pans fed high grade wheat averaged 84.8 eggs per bird, consumed three-quarters of a pound more feed, acquired slightly more body weight, and gave a revenue of seven cents more in egg value. However, these advantages were depreciated when accounting showed that the pens supplied with the low grade wheat cost 8 1/2 cents less to feed and showed a net profit of 1 1/2 cents per bird over the competing pens for the six-month period. Production of the latter was 82.2 eggs.

For protein supplements in feeding, fish meal was compared with meat meal. In each case it made up 10 per cent of the animal protein in the mash. The comparison covered six years. Egg production was almost identical, being 82 eggs per bird in a six-month period, and the eggs were similar in weight. The only advantages seemed to be that the birds fed on meat meal consumed a pound more feed per bird and put on slightly more body weight.

A poultry plant in southern Manitoba, which is run for the production of eggs, may substitute barley for corn, low grade wheat for the plumping wheat, and meat meal for fish meal. The comparison made at Morden does not show in any of the three cases difference of much significance.

Happy Relations

Another Illustration Of Good Feeling Between Canada And United States

The Toronto Star Weekly says: A million United States "pennies" were reported shipped to Toronto to make up the Christmas card-shortage here. The happy relations existing between the two countries add an illustration in this free circulation of small coins which will dispense without question. But they cease to be called "pennies" when they enter Canada. To Canadians a penny is not a cent, not a cent, not a cent, although our own pennies are nearly all out of circulation now, and have not been coined for many, many years.

The question in the physical sensation read: "How may one obtain a good posture?" The country boy wrote: "Keep the knees off it and it will grow up a while."

Advances in Medicine

Wounded Soldiers' Chances Of Recovery Greatly Enhanced

The wounded soldier's chance of recovery in this war are "infinitely greater" than in 1914-18. Dr. T. C. Rutley, general surgeon of the Canadian Medical Association, said. The C.M.A. itself is mobilized, 8,500 strong, to keep death at a distance for Canadian troops on active service. Canadian medicine is providing the finest medical talent in the world and the Dominion government is providing the finest equipment.

All advances in medicine of the past 25 years are being utilized. According to Dr. Rutley "marvellous improvements" in surgery, especially in post-operative care, will be practiced at base hospitals and the methods of preventive medicine—vaccinating the unit before they go overseas—will help also.

Thousands of Canadians lost limbs in the War, but medical men believe amputations will be greatly reduced this time by prompt first aid, blood transfusions and newly-developed anti-infection serum. Thousands of others died of pneumonia and other lung diseases, and this causality will be reduced by the new drug developed in the past few years and used with remarkable results.

Perhaps even more important have been the measures taken by military authorities with C.M.A. co-operation. All ranks in the first division now in England were X-rayed for chest trouble before they left Canada and the unit were weed-out.

An officer of medical experts, the defence department also stood aside all youths under 19, keeping them in training, rather than sending them overseas for active service. Doctors advised that the health of such youths is more likely to break down than that of older men.

Blood banks, made possible through refrigeration of blood for transfusion purposes, have been prepared, gallons of the vital fluid is being donated by young Canadians, many of them university students.

The British Empire

Can Make Decisive Contribution To A New World Order

The British Empire, "in itself a successful league of nations," is in a position "to make a decisive contribution to the new world order" built after the war, Lord Riall, chairman of the London county council and Labor leader in the house of lords, said during a broadcast.

"If the Empire's own structure and experience suggest the methods to be followed," he said, "it is through the league of nations, many states. It illustrates the way in which particular and often apparent divergent interests can be made consistent with the common good." "Fully conscious of its own short-comings, recognizing its own urgent need for growth and development, it believes that the principles of personal freedom, mutual trust and individual responsibility, which it has worked out through centuries of effort could be of service to the world on a wider scale."

Something To Laugh At

Shoe Designers Bring Out New Heels For Ladies' Footwear

The Easter rabbit shook the icicles off his whiskers and saw surprising things while looking over the new feminine footnotes at the annual shoe show fair in Chicago.

To begin with, the preview of spring styles indicated the heels will get the attention in the Easter parade, for shoe designers have concentrated on heels with interesting—and startling—results.

There's a new heel that resembles a miniature bear leg covered with leather or fabric. And this spring women will slide along on a heel copied from a sleigh.

Then there are new variations of wedge heels, platform heels, double platform heels, heels extra high covered with beads. Also there are heels that lace up in back, correct fashion, shoe fair in Chicago.

Has Proved Successful

Schools Has Been Upheld

For the third successive year the Halifax industrial school's "honor system" has been upheld and the 47 boys who were allowed home for the Christmas holidays are back at the school.

Ten years ago, Rev. W. D. Wilson, superintendent of the Correctional school, decided to allow home for Christmas a few of the boys—their ages range from 14 to 18—who were back at the appointed time.

Encouraged, Rev. Mr. Wilson, a Baptist clergyman who held pastorates in several places in the maritimes before he took charge of the industrial school, decided to continue the plan. Each year more and more boys went home for a few days at Christmas. This year there were 47.

In those 10 years every boy has come back voluntarily. Only once was a boy late, but medical men believe amputations will be greatly reduced this time by prompt first aid, blood transfusions and newly-developed anti-infection serum.

That's a good record. But at St. Patrick's home, Roman Catholic correctional school, it has been the practice for about 25 years to allow boys home for Christmas. Some whose homes are in the Halifax area may go home for a few days.

Brother Allan, in charge of the home, said during the years he has been there all came back from these leaves.

Camouflage Specialist

Middle-Aged Woman Is Doing Important Work In France

Though the army does not permit women to be in the front, the first woman officer of the British Expeditionary Force has arrived in France. She is middle-aged, the mother of two children and wears the gold stars of a captain on her smart khaki uniform. On her tunic is the ribbon of a Commander of the Order of the British Empire, bestowed upon her for her work as a secretary of the intelligence service during the World War.

She is no longer attached to the intelligence service. The work which she has specialized in camouflage. She is in charge of a factory behind the lines, wherein are produced nets, screens and other devices for the skillful concealment of British troops and equipment from German eyes.—Brandon Sun.

Has Life Job

Woman Is Responsible For Flag On The Eiffel Tower

During the recent anniversary of the Eiffel Tower in Paris one woman was specially interested although she had not been in the background. Her job for life is to keep the flag flying at the top, nearly 1,000 feet above the ground. Every morning, rain or shine, she raises it. Every night she lowers it. If it has been damaged in any way she must repair it before sunrise. The woman has been doing this for 35 years.

Decency Of Human Nature

Close contacts with men and women in all walks of life, some of them put to the severest tests, should convince anyone of the unshaken honesty and decency of human nature, states William F. McDermott, in the Fortnightly Magazine. There is for the unshaken integrity of the mass of people, how could 98 per cent of the world's business be done on credit?

First Lion: "Will you excuse me, please, I have a business engagement!"
